

Aubrie Zion Styles

Director of Music Worship Arts

Zion started singing at the age of eight. She knew she wanted to be a singer when she heard Mariah Carey's album "butterfly." Upon that discovery, she started pursuing her passion for music, with her first debut performance being in a local production of a High School Musical at Citrus college. She also started leading worship at 15 and has led in several churches across the span of 14 years. In addition, to worship leading, she has done background work for local gospel artists, was a member of the jazz ensemble at Hope international university, a member of the gospel group "souls A'fire", and the chapel praise team "ORU live" at Oral Robert's University where she is still finishing her education.

Favorite Scripture

Zephaniah 3:17

Her proudest accomplishment was the release of her EP titled "Presenting Zion" which included three self-written songs expressing several elements of her relationship with God. Currently, Zion serves as the resident worship leader for a women's ministry founded by her mother called Deborah and Esther Arising. Zion's passions and interests extend far beyond music. She attended the Salon Success Academy where she obtained an esthetician's license. She has a knack for fashion and enjoys expressing that in her style. She is one of eight children and enjoys spending time with her family. Zion also intends to be a voice in her generation standing against injustices like human trafficking, abortion, and abuse of women, children, and men. Zion hopes that her music will be a beacon of light for those lost in darkness, an anthem of freedom for those who feel bound, and a message of love to those who are broken and hurting.
